

A boyband that clicks

Fahrenheit launches Canon's new range of digital cameras

KUALA LUMPUR: Smile please, members of the Taiwanese boyband Fahrenheit is clicking away.

The four Wu Chun, Jiro Wang, Calvin Chen and Aaron Yan, who are used to being photographed, showed how much they enjoyed taking pictures of others at a press conference yesterday to launch Canon's new range of Digital Ixus cameras.

There are three new models - IXUS 130, IXUS 105 and IXUS 210.

Signed on as brand ambassadors for Canon's Digital Ixus range for yet another term, the boys raved about the stylish models and new enhanced features.

The group has already released three studio albums and are working on their fourth, expected to hit the stores in the third quarter of the year.

Fahrenheit will be making an appearance to promote their DVD at Tropicana City Mall at 11am tomorrow.

They will also attend a soft launch ceremony for the Canon concept store @ Soho KL, Mont Kiara at 6pm the same evening.

Fab four: (From left) Yan, Wang, Wu and Chen getting together at the launching of the Digital Ixus cameras yesterday.